MINO-NIIGAANENDMOWIN
EDUCATION | LIFE SKILLS

Mino-niigaanendmowin

What is it?

Mino-niigaanendmowin is a program running in your community that offers basic education and life skills training. Participants complete up to 12 weeks of education, 2 weeks of life skills training, and a 15-week paid work placement.

Who is it for?

It you are between 18-30 years old and are not presently working or going to school, this program could be a great fit for you. It doesn't matter if you are status, non-status, indigenous, or non-indigenous. Contact the site facilitator for your area. They will work with you to look for ways for you to meet your goals.

Where can I attend?

We are offering this program in multiple locations across the region so participants don't have to move. You can access this program in: Fort William First Nation, Kiashke Zaaging Anishinaabek, Binjitiwaabik Zaaging Anishinaabek, Pic Mobert First Nation, Animbiigoo Zaagi'igan Anishinaabek (Beardmore) and Thunder Bay.

What are the benefits?

Mino-niigaanendmowin helps you work towards a recognized high school diploma with an in-house teacher. We work with you to build a plan around your needs and desires. You may be eligible for support around income, childcare and transportation.

What if I am over 30 or presently working?

Some aspects of the program are still available for you. Contact a site facilitator for details.

When can I Start?

We are starting our next group in September 2018, but you can talk to a site facilitator at any time.

Your Site Facilitator: Chris King Jr. , (807) 982-0006, kzafacilitator@nokiiwin.com

Mino-niigaanendmowin is an Anishinaabe phrase which combines the concepts of "thinking ahead in a good way" and "silently learning together".
